Gets Third in the Race for Class D.

Knockabouts Again Give Best Exhibition of the Day.

Question Gets a Leg in the PLYMOUTH, Mass, Aug 22-The secnd open race in the South Shore circuit of the Massachusetts yacht racing association, was sailed today around Duxbury bay, under the auspices of the Duxbury yacht club.

There was a large number of boats the race was one of the best sailed here for many years. There were five classes to start, class

D. the 25-foot cabin yachts; class S, 21-foot cabin yachts; class I, 18-foot knockabouts; first handloap class, open to yachts over 21 feet; second handicap class, open to yachts under 21 feet. Cash prizes were given in all classes, and in addition prize pennants were awarded to the winners of first, second and third places in classes D, S and I, whether they defeated competitors or

The course was an inside one around Duxbury bay, so that the boats were in sight all the time from the clubhouse and shore. It started from off the ciuphouse, leaving flag mark to port; thence to a red barrel off the southwest end of Clarks island, leaving Clarks island to starboard, thence to a red barrel off High Pines and then back to the place of starting, a distance of six miles. It was salled over twice by all classes except second handleap class, which went over once.

The wind was fair at the start, from the east, and then changed to southeast, so there was an easy reach to Clarks Island buoy, a close haul to High Pines, and a free run back to the starting point.

Pines, and a free run back to the starting point.

The preparatory gun was fired at 12 o'clock, and 10 minutes later class D was sent away. There were three starters, the Ayreto, Calypso and Chewink II, which came in from Boston last night. There was some maneuvering for the position at the start, and when the gun was fired the Ayreto crossed first, with the Calypso and Chewink II close behind.

Ayreto in the Lead.

The Ayreto soon drew away in the lead, and the Chewink broke off her balloon jib, and at the first mark the Calypso was ahead a few seconds. On so was ahead a few seconds. On the close haul down by Clarks island to the Flum hills the boats kept about the same positions. After they rounded the buoy they broke out their spinnakers and ran for the judges' mark.

The Calypso was the first to go around and was off like a racehorse on the second lap, with the Ayreto and Chewink close together on the reach from Clarks island to High Pines. Capt Nickerson worked the Ayreto up close on the Calypso and overlapped her, and on the run-home the boats set their spinnakers and balloon jibs and came like fiyers. run-home the boats set their spinnakers and balloon jibs and came like flyers. The Ayreto worked up into windward position and was ahead. The Chewink was close up to the Calypso, and they indulged in a luffing match; it kept yesterday's winner out of first place, while the Ayreto got the race with the Calypso second. A great cheer went up from the Baker launch as the winner crossed the line.

In class S there were five startow.

In class S there were five starters. The Thecla came into the harbor last night and entered for the race, but the Rambler salled in the handicap class. The Chloris got any a feet with the control of th Rambler sailed in the handicap class. The Chloris got away first, with the Little Haste second and Theela third. The Little Haste scoon had the lead, but at the first mark the Chloris rounded ahead, with the Theela second. The Little Haste and Theela were side by side down to High Pines, each making a fight for the position. The Chloris started on the last lap 40 seconds in the lead; on the second time around the Little Haste again crawled up on the leader, and there was a big fight for first place. The Little Haste captured it and won out by three minutes.

Lively Knockabouts. Class I gave the prettiest race of the day; there were 13 starters and they all got to the line together. The Question got the lead; she started off in a direct course for the buoy, while the Kitta-wake and others in the fleet stood out farther into the bay.

On the first time around the Question led, with Kittawake second, Osprewthird and Gartrude fourth. The Question won out easily and the Gertrude worked up from fourth place into second place.

Despite This Obstacle the American Yacht Utowana Captured the Coronation Cup.

COWES, isle of Wight, Aug 22-The American yacht Dtowana, A. V. Armour of New York, won the sailing race for auxiliary vachts, started Monday and the coronation cup offered by the earl of Crawford. She passed the mark at 10:53 o'clock last night.

The Utowana came in sight of Cowes at 6:30 last evening and had reached within a few wards of the mark when she was caught by a strong tide and drifted three-quarters of a mile back. At 9 o'clock she was still trying to make the mark. The Valhalla, owned by the earl of Crawford, gave up the race, and at 9 o'clock the other contestants had not been sighted.

FROM FACTORY TO HIGH PLACE AS ARTIST.

Jeanne J. Bertrand, a Girl of 21, Has Become One of the Leo Ware of Boston is Eminent Photographers of Connecticut.

This is the story of Jeanne J. Bertrand, the factory girl, who has become one of the most famous photographers in Connecticut, and who gives promise-for she is only 21 years of age-of becoming one of the great artistic photographers of the country. In the career of this fatherless girl a foreigner in a strange country, with no friends to give her a start, and with little academic education, there is a certain inspiration for all girls. Jeanne J. Bertrand has been one of the most enthusiastic delegates to the sixth annual convention of the Photographers' association of New England, France. Which concluded its session last even ing in Copley hall. She, with her dark, expressive eyes, her frank, intelligent and girlish face, which is crowned with a wealth of jet black hair, and her lithe figure, has been welcomed more heartily probably by the other delegates than any person who was present gates than any person who was present at the convention.

For she is known by the members of the New England association and the members of the national association as are few others—known for her knowledge and ability, for her girlish frankness and for her enthusiasm for the art to which she says she is wedded. It was not a case of precoclous genius for photography. She had not played with cameras when other girls were playing with dolls. It is just a case of an ambitious girl, who knew absolutely nothing about a camera until some four years ago; a girl who shrank with horror from life in a factory and whose genius was the genius for hard work wherein she could see some future; whose ambition was to play a larger part in the she could see some toture; whose ambi-tion was to play a larger part in the would than she could play in a needle factory, and who made up her mind, if study and perserverance intelligently applied counted for anything in the world's work she would succeed.

And she has succeeded in a very large degree.

"This is the work of a little girl named Bertrand, down in Torrington, Ccnn." said one of the old members of the association to the writer, pointing to about a half dozen excellent character portraits, the evening the exhibit was being hung in Copley hall. There was work by famous men and women from all over the country on the walls, but these examples took high rank among

Then she told of her father's reverses in his native land. He was a road inspector in the employ of the government. He brought his wife and family of four children to America to "pick up dollars on the streets," as Jeanne laughingly put it. He was an innocent artisan, who had lived easily among his own kinsmen in his native land; a southern, sunshiny Frenchman who really knew nothing of America. He died two years ago, and his child known that he died hating everything American.

immigrants have experienced while undergoing the hardening process in the terrible crucible of American civilization—the annihilation of old ideals and the substitution of a new point of view in nearly all things; the utter indifference of people to cherished customs; then the slow, almost deadening realization that dependence on self is the first rung of the American ladder and that after that life is a battle in which only the strong and indifferent win. All the old home sentiments vanish or have to be materially modified in the new environment. fronment.

She clenched her teeth and hands for a moment as she thought of this part of her young life.

"But." she continued, "I had to do something and that was about the only thing there was to do in Torrington. Finally one day about four years ago I came home and I told my mother that I would leave the factory on the first of April. I told her that I meant it and I did.

CAMBRIDGE'S VALUATION.

Tax Rate This Year is $18.30, the Highest Reached in the History of the City.

The Cambridge tax rate, $18.30, which was announced yesterday by the assessors, is the largest in the history of the city. Last year the tax rate was $16.90, and this year the tax takes a jump of $1.40. Only once before in the of the city has the figure reached $18, that being in 1878, when it was just $18. In 1897 the tax was $17.50, and then came a drop.

The increase this year is accounted for by the tax assessments on metropolitan parks, new armory, expense attending the smallpox epidemic and the increase in city expenses. The latter have increased $80,000 over last year. Then there was an overlay of $60,000 voted by the city council. For the first time in the city council. For the first time in three years the city will have to pay the metropolitan park tax, which amounts to $36,686.14.

The assessors falled to adopt the policy of Mayor McNamee to increase the assessed valuation from $5,000.000 to $10.000,000. In fact, the increase in the valuation is below the average.

The assessed valuation is as follows: Personal property, $17,739,885; real estate, $80,396,900; total $98,186,785, against a total of $98,216,875 last year.

The total amount of the warrants is $1,788,770.21. Last year the city warrants amounted to $1,446,354.22. The city tax was as follows: City, $1,521,672.58; compty, $100,184.86; state, $47,820; sewer, $78,252.17; metropolitan parks, $36,686.14; armory, $4154.46. ory, $4154.46.

NEWFORT, R I, Aug 22-Pleasant but extremely warm weather favored the fourth day of the national tennis tournament. Several important matches were played with surprising results. The best contest of the morning that between Dr Pim and Leo Ware. The latter, being a Boston man, has gratified the large number of Massachusetts people here by his good playing so far, and today, although the former British champion played much better than at any time previously this year in this country, his young American opponent proved too much for him, winning, 7—5, 7—5, 6—3. It was a very creditable achievemen for Ware to defeat such a good player as Dr Pim, even though the latter's game is not what it was years ago. This morning the British player came to the net very often and showed much of his old-time alertness. He played for every point, but plainly was not able to endure such a strenuous game. His easy wist cross court returns just over the net that suggest the strokes of Kerr, the wonderful Irish player, were made today with good effect. Neither was Dr Pim's playing marred by the laziness which heretofore characterized his action on the court, but, as before stated, he apparently could not stand the effect of so strenuous a game as his opponent put up. Seldom, if ever, has Ware played such hard and careful tennis as he did this morning. Ware falls just short of being a great player. Today none of his strokes were awkward or lacking in finish, and it was a pleasure to see him play. His hard service was effective and won for him many aces. Then, too, his sweening super services.

ASKED THE POLICE TO KILL HIM.

At 9:15 last evening a man stood on Tremont st, near Lagrange st, talking to a young and rather pretty girl, when a young woman, who was also quite comely, came down the street and stepping between the couple struck the man a resounding whack in the face.

When she delivered the blow she delivered this remark: "You will run around with other women will you, you loafer?"

The man didn't stop to make any reply, but ran down into Lagrange st, the woman after him, shouting at the top of her voice, "Stop him." A crowd of men and boys fell in behind her, and they set up a cheer when, near the police station on Lagrange st, the woman to aught up with the man and began belaboring him over the head with her fists.

He stood it about half a minute, and the stood of the stood of him the police didn't take in regard to the marshalship of the parade.

"When Col A. Noel Blakeman was appointed chief of staff almost a year ago it was with the expectation and uncerstanding that he would act as marshal of the parade. The duties of that position are burdensome and involve a great amount of detail work, upon which Col Blakeman has been engaged for some months past. It has been my expectation and desire that President Roosevelt and Lieut Gen Miles should review the parade with me, and invitations to that effect will be sent to those distinguished persons.
